While learning English, I also feel a sense of belonging that I am a member of this society. The opportunity to listen to English through the English Empowerment Center and to read, write and speak English gives me confidence.

Bangjin,
English Empowerment Center Learner

A bequest to the English Empowerment Center supports our critical work helping adults with low literacy and language skills become more empowered in their communities.

You may realize significant tax savings through your charitable bequests and giving. We would be happy to discuss the best approach for you.

EEC is unique because it focuses on beginning-level English language and basic literacy-level learners in a research-based, National Reporting Standards approved academic life-skills program. The English Empowerment Center is an entry point for adult learners, helping thousands take their first crucial steps toward becoming financially and technically literate, passing the citizenship test, or enrolling in specialized job training that will help their families thrive.
A will is a legal document. But a will is first and foremost about you and the people and community you care about. Your will is about your family members, friends and loved ones, and the charitable organizations you support, like the English Empowerment Center (EEC).

When you create or update your will, you can make sure those who need your help will receive it. Here’s how you can do this:

CONSIDER YOUR BENEFICIARIES’ SPECIFIC NEEDS  Perhaps you have grandchildren who you would like to help with college expenses, or children who you want to help with a down payment for a house or medical expenses. Be specific and mention your beneficiaries and bequests by name.

INCLUDE SPECIAL ITEMS  If you have a collection of art objects, jewelry or other valuable and prized possessions that you would like to leave to someone, then make sure you include them in your will, so they will not be sold or included in a blanket bequest of your remaining estate.

REMEMBERING EEC  When you create or update your will, perhaps you will wish to take advantage of special estate tax-savings and include a charitable gift to the English Empowerment Center.

| A will is a legal document. But a will is first and foremost about you and the people and community you care about. Your will is about your family members, friends and loved ones, and the charitable organizations you support, like the English Empowerment Center (EEC). | Your past support of the English Empowerment Center has been a critical part of our success in providing education programs for adults; helping them make measurable improvements in their lives and communities. You can continue your critical support today through:
CASH GIFTS  Your cash gift, made payable to EEC, will help us continue and develop programs.
STOCKS OR SECURITIES  When you transfer stock or other securities to EEC, they are tax deductible at their fair market value.
BEQUESTS  Just as a bequest to your family contributes to their future, a bequest to EEC is a simple way in which you can provide lasting support to help teach adults the basic skills of reading, writing, and speaking English. Your bequest can be a specific sum, a percentage of your estate, or items such as real estate, securities, and personal property. | This information is strictly confidential. Please print clearly.
